Courier Management System (CMS)

User Story:

Courier and logistics companies often struggle to efficiently manage shipments and deliveries due to reliance on manual processes and disconnected systems. The absence of a centralized shipment tracking mechanism makes it difficult to monitor parcel movement in real time, resulting in delayed delivery updates and poor visibility for customers. Delivery agent assignments are performed manually, increasing the chances of scheduling conflicts and operational delays. Furthermore, the lack of automated notifications prevents timely communication with customers, while the absence of performance analytics limits managerial insight into operational efficiency. Managing multiple branches becomes complex without an integrated platform, leading to coordination issues across locations. Collectively, these challenges result in customer dissatisfaction, reduced productivity, operational inefficiencies, and ultimately revenue loss for the organization.
